I trust that the Bandsmen, their families and their supporters will thoroughly enjoy their sojourn in our town, and take away very pleasant memories of old friendships renewed, new friendships gained, keen competition in the contests and of the hospitality extended to them by our people.

Australian Band Council

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

I am pleased to have this opportunity of congratulating Dubbo in securing for its citizens and bandsmen the right to hold the most important band event of the year — the holding of the Australian Band Championships of 1961 in your centre.

In past years Championships in New South Wales have invariably been held in or near to the Metropolis, and the Governing Body of the affiliated bands has certainly realised that Brass Band Contesting has grown beyond the confines of the Capital City, and is spreading to centres far distant from the confines of Sydney.

It is only by attending a Championship band contest that one is made to realise how great is the numerical strength and rapid growth of the Brass Band movement. Its impact on the life of our community is immense. It has of recent years become part of our everyday life, until there is scarcely a township or hamlet which has not its brass band combination.

Band music is the music of the people, and our bands not only provide music of a high order for those who attend our contests, but they turn out to give delight to the hosts who congregate the streets to watch parades, football matches, races and concerts regularly all the year round in the public parks and at church and charitable entertainments. We are proud that the Brass Band movement is purely amateur in status. Apart from the conductor every player in the band gives his services free of charge, sacrificing many hours at first; practicing to make himself proficient, and then giving delightful music for the enjoyment of others.

The band movement is unique in that there is no art, game, sport or hobby which creates such enthusiasm as playing in a band. Bandsmen love it, and it is a hobby which never stales, as in music, especially brass band music, there is always the strive to do well and better than well.

I am particularly pleased to see that at this contest provision has been made for the inclusion of Junior events. Although there is no age limit to a band instrumentalist, most bands pay a great deal of attention to the training of young people, both boys and girls. Bands are making a great impact on the lives of the youngsters, and providing them with an amenity which educates them and teaches a knowledge and a love of music — the finest of the arts. Further, it keeps them off the streets and is doing much to solve the problem of child delinquency.

The Brass Bands have "taken on" the world over, and contesting throughout the world since the last war has reached a peak both musically and numerically never attained before. As an instance, last year over 900 bands competed in the area and sectional contests in Britain, and in Australia more bands than ever before are attending our contests.

In Australia the Australian Band Council has, affiliated with its State

C. GREEN, Qld.

Governing Bodies, over 300 Bands, each of which comprise an average of 35 players, so one can imagine the cost of providing instruments and uniforms, music and practice halls etc.: and here I add tribute to the great work being accomplished by band committees and officials in raising funds to carry on the job of giving pleasure and entertainment to the community.

The standard of music has improved immensely and we find that the great composers are devoting more time and interest in the creation of music in the modern theme. In addition our arrangers are devoting their efforts to adapt the music of the old masters to scores for the brass band, thus enabling the public to enjoy the delightful music of the composers of long ago.

The main objects of the Council and its affiliated associations are:— To promote a general love and knowledge of band music and good fellowship amongst bandsmen and to create a public demand for music by providing musical recitals, band contests, entertainments and competitions. It is a good thing to remember that one man doesn't make a band. To make a success of any contest we should not overlook the fact that the success also depends on the bandmasters, drum-majors, committees and voluntary workers, ticket collectors; even the "bloke" who fetches the water, and not the least your President, Executive members and your energetic Secretary.

Finally, my thanks goes to the bandsmen who are attending the contest, and all you grand people of Dubbo who have assisted financially or in kind, in making your musical venture an outstanding success.

DUBBO -- HUB OF THE WEST

A comfortable drive north-west from Sydney (261 miles along the all-bitumen Mitchell Highway), Dubbo lies on the east bank of the Macquarie River at the junction of the Newell Highway, which merges with the Oxley Highway to give access to the Northern Tablelands and North Coast.

Country round Dubbo was discovered by explorer John Oxley in 1818. The land was first settled in 1824 by G. J. Palmer and John Wylde. In 1833 Robert V. Dulhunty took up land calling it "Dubbo" (an aboriginal word meaning "red earth").

The present town site was first settled in 1841 and Dubbo became a place for holding Courts and Petty Sessions in 1846. It was proclaimed a village in 1849 and a municipality in 1872.

The population has increased from 381 in 1872 to 14,000 in 1961.

The railway was extended to Dubbo in 1881, and now has become a key town in the State's rail network, the largest control centre in N.S.W., directing the operations of 700 miles of track. Passenger and mail trains run to and from Dubbo twice daily, with fast goods trains maintaining regular schedules.

The airfield just outside Dubbo is capable of handling international jetliners and brings Sydney to within an hours' flying time.

The town now has all necessary amenities, including water, gas electricity and sewerage. Water filtration and pumping stations are modern, the supply of filtered and softened water to consumers makes Dubbo the only town in Australia where this service is provided by local government.

Second only in importance to Sydney's Homebush, the Dubbo stock-market, three miles north of the town, has excellent facilities for handling sheep, cattle and pigs with its rail-siding, its restaurant for buyers and sellers, its modern shearing sheds and dips.

Dubbo's local industries are prosperous, many and varied and provide full and regular employment for the townspeople.

In addition to the P.M.G.'s Divisional Headquarters (which supervises the entire Western Districts telephone system) and the Dubbo Municipal Abattoirs, there are businesses engaged in engineering, flourmilling, brick-making, sawmilling, joinery, the manufacture of fibrous plaster and concrete pipes, clothing and cordials; there are gravel suppliers, bulk oil and petrol terminals, building and flooring industries, newspapers and printing works, as well as a large philately industry, the biggest in the Southern Hemisphere.

Wholesale distributors, too, are making Dubbo their headquarters, establishing stores and depots from which to supply the vast areas to the west.

Residents of Dubbo and visitors are well catered for with its busy shopping centre of modern stores, banks and commercial houses — all geared to keep pace with the needs of the town and district.

As busy and prosperous as Dubbo has become, there is still room for more industries, wholesalers and retailers in the town. There are excellent commercial, industrial and home-building sites available; the facilities are capable of meeting any requirements; the opportunities are limitless.

The Dubbo Chamber of Commerce and the Dubbo Municipal Council, both alert, progressive bodies, will welcome and gladly assist with any enquiries.
