On behalf of the Council and the people of the Municipality of Willoughby, I welcome the visiting bandsmen, their supporters and friends, to the 1975 Band Championships in our Civic Centre at Chatswood.

This is the first occasion that we have been hosts for these Championships and we feel privileged and proud that Willoughby has been chosen as the venue in 1975. This is a compliment not only to our Band, but to our community and we are sure you will find the facilities and atmosphere at Chatswood and the hospitality of the people conducive to a successful contest.

Our own Willoughby Municipal Band has had many successes over recent years and we hope that these successes will continue this year. We do recognize and respect, however, the fine quality and standard of the competing Bands that are gathered here from all Australian States and New Zealand and the strong competition that will prevail.

I extend my best wishes to all groups and individuals for a successful and enjoyable competition.

A WELCOME FROM THE PRESIDENT

The National Band Championships of 1975 have a special significance with the presence of Mr. Geoffrey Brand as Chief Musical Adjudicator.

Mr. Brand's ability as a Musician is well known to the Australian Brass Band Fraternity through his many first class recordings with Champion British Bands.

I am sure all competing Bands will benefit greatly from his Musical Criticisms.

The Drill Adjudicator Mr. Cliff Sorrell (who incidentally is also The National Band Council President) is a familiar and popular figure in the context of Marching Competitions.

I offer a sincere welcome to the National Championships in Sydney to both of these Officials who I am sure will find the experience both stimulating and enjoyable.

Best wishes to all competing Bandsmen from New Zealand, Interstate and New South Wales for a Musically successful and socially satisfying Contest.

I express our indebtedness and our thanks to The Australian Broadcasting Commission for the Sponsorship of "A" Grade. Boosey and Hawkes Ltd. for "B" Grade and the Castle Music Co. for Junior Grade.

The facilities of The Willoughby Town Hall as an ideal venue for this important Contest have been made available through the good offices of The Mayor and Council of Willoughby and for this major contribution The Contest Committee is extremely grateful.

In conclusion I wish to express my appreciation to our Secretary — Organiser Mr. Les Turner and to all members of The Executive and The Contest Committee without whose consistent work and application this Championship Contest would not have eventuated.

T.E. Gawn.

A MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT OF THE NATIONAL BAND COUNCIL

The beautiful City of Sydney will be host to the thousands of bandsmen and women who will be competing for the National Honours during this Easter weekend. Bands from all over Australia and New Zealand have travelled thousands of miles to compete and enjoy the N.S.W. hospitality and fellowship of banding.

We are honoured and delighted to have Geoffrey Brand the famous British Musician here as our Senior Music Adjudicator, and there is little doubt that his presence has been responsible for record entries. His fame as professional conductor of the Black Dyke Mills Band is well known, and his ability is unchallenged in brass banding.

Welcome Geoffrey — each and every competitor senior and junior salutes you, and is proud of the opportunity of receiving your personal comments on their performance and will respect your judgements.

The Band Association of New South Wales has been responsible for organising the 1975 Championships, and to them we offer our congratulations.

These events are the climax to months of planning and hardwork not only by administrators but by Bandmasters — Drum Majors — members of each band — Soloists — groups — accompanists — trainers and those dedicated people who have made it possible for all competitors to be in Sydney for this exciting musical gathering.

Governments — National, State and local, business organizations, the media, have all made valuable contributions, whilst the Australian Council for the Arts, the Australian Broadcasting Commission and Ansett Airlines of Australia have been most generous in their support of this years Championships.

History will record the feats of the musicians here assembled and when we return to our homes let us be mindful of the fact that we are part of great heritage created by bandsmen and women who down the years have gathered together on competition stage and marched on the ovals, always giving of their very best. No one can do more. In true sportsmanship let us say our "greatest achievement was to participate."

The experience gained in making music friendly competition will stimulate our future thoughts and actions, and lead us along the road of life with greater understanding and peace of mind that comes through a love of music.

In conclusion, let me say how fortunate we are in having such a great number of talented young musicians in our movement, and pay tribute to those dedicated people who are doing so much to encourage and teach them the art of making music.

Congratulations and Best Wishes to you all.

A POSTHUMOUS MESSAGE FROM THE SECRETARY

To all those people who have assisted with the organising of this National Band Contest "A VERY SPECIAL THANK YOU".

To the Willoughby Municipal Council, our sincere thanks and appreciation for their generous action in making the Town Hall and facilities available also Beachamp Park, for the conducting of this historic Contest.

Since the beginning of recorded history, music of some kind has been used for every special and momentous occasion, and with the evolution of the Brass Band instruments came the demand for the services of bands and Bandsmen.

During the months before a contest many hours a week are spent in rehearsing, and quite a few bandsmen travel many miles to be with their band on these occasions. The brass band world has no age limits. Before you today you see young lads and girls just starting out on their career as bandsmen and bandswomen, Bandsmen in their prime, and many others approaching and in the veteran class. Such is the spirit of the band movement.

When the occasion arises it is the brass band that provides background precision and colour for pageantry, processions and other requirements.

Surely this calls for the utmost recognition from Government and Municipal Bodies and the community in General in order to finance Bands.?

To equip a modern band with first class instruments and uniforms it costs at least $16,000 ... Think about this and consider, who would want to place over a $10,000 dollars worth of equipment plus twenty four qualified tradesmen on display, for a letter of thanks and a $10 donation.

It is with extreme pleasure that I extend a warm and sincere welcome to all visiting Bandsmen, officials and supporters who are here to assist us to make this Contest another landmark in the march of progress of the great brass band movement, and particularly to make this Australian Championship Contest a memorable event to remember.

Many of you are lifelong friends, and many more are competing for the first time. We, therefore feel honoured that you have graced us with your attendance. We appreciate the fact that you are paying us a compliment by travelling, in many cases long distances to compete at this Contest and to meet in the happy comradeship that binds all bandsmen together.

I wish you good luck, friendly rivalry and a memorable time amongst our people here in Sydney.

To the people of Willoughby we say thank you for having us and giving your support for the weekend.

LES TURNER

He has a vast experience of drill and marching gained over the years and has judged National and State Championships on many occasions in most parts of this country.

PERCUSSION ADJUDICATOR

Mr. Ken Laing

Ken Laing is a professional percussionist resident in Sydney.

He has played many times with the Sydney Symphony Orchestra, The Elizabethan Trust Orchestra and the Australian Opera Company. Also as the Principal percussionist at Musical "No No Nanette" at Sydneys Regent Theatre.

He commenced his career with the Bankstown Police Boys Band, and is still actively associated with the Band Movement in New South Wales.

The visit to Sydney some four years ago by the "Percussions of Strasbourg" created great interest among percussionists, it is through these players that Ken Laing now maintains regular contact with the latest trends in percussion overseas.

This is the fifth occasion he has officiated as Adjudicator for the percussion section of our Solo Championships. His decisions have at all times been favourably received: His appointment to this the First Australian Championship Percussion Section has brought forward many favourable comments from the entrants in the section.

HISTORY OF THE BAND ASSOCIATION OF NEW SOUTH WALES

Spasmodic and isolated attempts to foster Band Contests were made in the '80's and early '90's of the last century, but the first definite attempt to put them on a sound basis and to stage contests with some semblance of order arose out of a meeting convened by Mr. C. Forest, proprietor of the "International Band News", held at Wollongong on 1st January, 1896, at which centre a Band Contest, won by the Fourth Regiment Band of Newcastle, conducted by Mr. W. Barkel, had just been concluded.

At that meeting an ambitious scheme was launched to promote an Inter-Colonial Band Contest on a much greater scale than previously.

Somewhat earlier, to be exact, on November 24th, 1895, the Band Association of New South Wales had been inaugurated as a result of a meeting held in Sydney and convened by Mr. W.G. Cook, Secretary of Redfern Borough Band. Many difficulties, some of which now read very strangely, were encountered when a set of rules for control of Bands and for Contesting were under consideration. In those days dance music at most of the Harbour picnics was supplied by Brass Bands of eight performers, and at one of the early meetings of the newly-formed Band Association of New South Wales the Secretary of a then prominent Sydney Band expressed astonishment that the minimum number of members to compete with a Band in a Contest should be fixed at sixteen. He was very definite in his views that if a Band was not able to play with a team of eight men it could not be called a Band at all.

However the various conflicting opinions were reconciled, a set of rules agreed upon, officials elected and the Band Association of New South Wales placed on such a sound foundation that it has functioned as an Association ever since. As a result of the formation of the Band Association and the meeting held at Wollongong events moved quickly and a committee was formed to implement the proposed Contest.

The New South Wales Government granted a subsidy of £250 to the fund and the contest which was held in the Exhibition Building, Sydney, on November 7th and 9th, 1896, brought together Bands from New South Wales, Tasmania and Queensland, there being nine competing Bands in "A" grade and ten in "B" grade. The Judges were Signor R. Hazon and Mr. T.P. Shaw of Sydney, and Mr. W.T. Bates of Hobart. The "A" grade Contest was won by Newtown Band, and the "B" grade by Zeehan Military Band from Tasmania. The Contest may be fairly claimed as the first important Band Contest held in Australia at which there was any definite form of rules or system of control under which Bands knew what they could or could not do.

At Christmas, 1896, Tasmania held a Contest on an Inter-Colonial scale. At this Contest the New South Wales Railway Military Band competed as the official representatives of New South Wales, having been selected for that honour by the combined New South Wales Bands and part of its expenses were defrayed by contributions from other Bands. They were not successful, however — an unknown country Band from New South Wales, McMahons Hillgrove Band actually filled a higher position in the prize list. This Band contained seven McMahon brothers, one of whom was the conductor.

The family subsequently migrated to the Western Australian Goldfields and by their outstanding ability lifted the Boulder City Band of West Australia to a position where it challenged the very best Bands that Australia could produce.

On two occasions, prior to 1938, New South Wales Bands have competed for the Championship of New Zealand and were successful on both occasions. Newcastle City being the winners in 1906, and South Sydney, later known as Bondi Beach Band in 1923. In 1953 the Portland Boy's Band visited New Zealand and was successful in winning two first prizes at the Contest held at Wanganui.

Band Associations were formed in the various States, and in February, 1915, a conference was held in Melbourne at which an attempt was made to arrive at a set of Contesting rules suitable for the whole Commonwealth. At that time there were several very important differences in the views of the different Associations as to the proper methods of Band Contesting.

An attempt was made to set up a supreme Band Contesting Governing Body for the whole of Australia, but the different views could not be reconciled and, although subsequent conferences were held in 1920 and 1921, no satisfactory settlement was reached. It remained for the Sydney conference in 1934 to bring into being a universal set of Contesting rules and to establish the Australian Band Council, which is now the supreme Band Contesting Authority in the Commonwealth. The representatives at this Sydney conference were Messrs. G. Burges (New South Wales), H.J. Sullivan (Victoria), W.J. Caught (Queensland), and H.G. Dall (South Australia).

Except for a Championship Contest in 1902, there was a temporary lull in New South Wales from 1898 to 1904, but a definite revival took place in 1905 and in only two years since (1907 and 1917) had Sydney failed to carry out its Championship Band Contest, up to 1938.

Since this date (1938) owing to many varied reasons contests have been allowed to lapse as a regular event, although at various periods Contests have been held in Sydney and at various Country centres. In 1957 the Band Association of New South Wales unanimously decided that the New South Wales State Championship Contest would again become a regular annual event, but it was not until last year (1958) that the event was again introduced. Now in 1959, we again have the Championships in Sydney and the entries point to this Championship Contest again being an annual event. The date for the 1960 Championship Contest has been set for the first Weekend in October and arrangements for this Contest to be held in the Parramatta District are now under way.

1961 Australian Championships were held at Dubbo, N.S.W. and were quite successful.

The formation of groups in various Country centres has been the means of many successful Contests being held in these centres and also Solo and Party Competitions.

At Easter 1953, the Rockdale District Band promoted a Solo and Party Competition at Rockdale. The support given by Bands from all parts of the State being such that it has been promoted with unbroken continuity each year since and now caters for all New South Wales Junior and State Championship Solo events.

For the 1906 Contest, twelve Sydney Bands handed over to the Contest fund £300. Being their total earnings from City Council Park programmes and that Contest was held in Hyde Park, Sydney, free to the public.

For the 1916 Contest the Band Association of New South Wales found itself without any money and the possibility of the Championship Contest being abandoned was contemplated. Better counsels prevailed however, and it was decided to offer the Bands a Contest on the best terms that could be managed. Total cash prizes of £ 50/10/0 were announced for the three grades. First prize in the Championship being £10 . No less than 15 bands competed.

A total of £73 cash prizes was announced for 1918 and 1919. In 1918 twenty-two Bands competed, while in 1919 the number grew to twenty-eight, including eight in the "A" grade Championship, for which the advertised first prize was $20 cash.

Never in its history has Sydney ever had to cancel a Championship Contest once it has been decided on.

FAMOUS BANDING PERSONALITY

Albert H. Baile

Mr. Baile was the distinguished conductor of the Newcastle Steelworks Band which competed with outstanding success at British contests in 1924. The Band won the Belle-Vue Championship against 22 Bands with Creswell Colliery in second placing. The Test Selection being Selections from Liszt. This great combination also won the Halifax Contest against 16 other Bands and were accordingly titled the British Empire Champions. In addition the Band was placed Third in the Crystal Palace Championships. Concert performances were also given during 1924 in the British Isles including a lengthy engagement at the British Empire Exhibition at Wembley. The Principal cornet for this tour was Arthur Stender.

Returning to Australia Mr. Baile organised the Australian Commonwealth Band and competed at Belle-Vue in 1926, being placed 4th. This was followed by very extensive tours over the next few years visiting all States of Australia, Canada, U.S.A. Sth Africa and New Zealand. As to be expected the playing personnel varied considerably over this lengthy period. Only two Australian Bands have ever competed at British Contests and the results indicate the wonderful ability and skill he possessed as a Band Trainer and Musical Director. Mr. Baile's musical career commenced at an early age when he was taught wood-wind by the player of the flute, piccolo, and clarinet and played these instruments professionally for some years. He then took up the study of Brass instruments and became a player of note on the cornet. His first visit to Ballarat was made with the A.W.A. Boulder Band under the late W.M. Partington, which won the contest. Later he competed at South Street three times with the Perth City Band. In 1913 he was appointed conductor of the Perth City Band, remaining with that unit until 1920 when he accepted an appointment with the Newcastle Steelworks Band. In 1922 the Steelworks Band won the Queensland Contest whilst in 1921 the Band had been placed 2nd at the National Championships at Ballarat where Malvern Municipal were the winners.

During the 1930's Mr. Baile commenced the Bondi Concert Band giving regular beach promenade concerts as well as contesting with varied success. In 1939 this Band became affiliated with the St John Ambulance Brigade and continued to function as the premier Band in NSW.

Mr. Baile enlisted in the Australian Military Forces in 1942 and in due course was promoted as Lieutenant. In October 1945 he presented a recital of Massed Army Bands in the Sydney Town Hall, assembling the largest aggregation of Bandsmen ever presented on the Town Hall stage. The recital was repeated and attracted overflowing houses on each occasion. Following his discharge from the Forces Mr. Baile resumed his position as Musical Director of the St John Ambulance Brigade Band winning the Australian Championship in 1948, 50, 51, 53, 55, 56.

As an Adjudicator he officiated in most States including National Championship events and on three occasions travelled to New Zealand for the National Titles.

His sudden passing in March 1961 was a great loss to the Banding movement. His ability and achievements as a Conductor and Organiser have yet to be equalled.

THE FASCINATING HOBBY OF VINTAGE

RECORD COLLECTING

by Jack Greaves

Most people at some time during their life involve themselves with an interest or a hobby.

For a bandsman; I can think of no better hobby than collecting gramophone records, for not only do these provide unlimited hours of pleasurable listening but if the collection includes the older style 78 rpm discs it is somewhat possible to follow the history of the band movement over the past seventy odd years.

Disc recording was introduced into Britain from America in 1898 with the establishment of a company which eventually evolved into the giant E.M.I. organisation that exists today. Surprisingly, however, and in spite of the fact that brass bands were probably at the height of their popularity with the masses in Britain around the early years of this century, there appears to be very few records made by British brass bands in those very early years. There were a number of recordings though, (both disc and cylinder put out by military bands and individual brass instrumentalists.

In my collection I have a set of seven discs made by the Besses o' th' Barn Band in May 1912, about two weeks after they returned from their second world tour and for years it appeared to me that these records could have been the earliest recordings made by a British brass band. But because of the popularity of bands in that era I could not believe that they were.

Not so many years ago I came across a disc which pre-dates the Besses' records by nine years. It is a single sided recording of the Overture "Don Sabastino" played by the famous Black Dyke Mills Band and must be considered a rarity these days.

After the Besses records were issued many brass band records followed from various companies and these seem to have reached a peak during the twenties when there was a variety of relatively small recording companies operating in Britain, a number of which regularly issued records by brass bands such as Foden's Motor Works; St. Hilda Colliery; Wingates Temperance; and Callender's Cable Works just to mention the more famous.

The series of band competitions held at the Crystal Palace in London was begun in 1900 by the late John Henry Isles and except for the war period of 1914 – 1919 was held every year until the Palace was destroyed by fire late in 1936. It was John Henry Isles who introduced the practice of commissioning original works as test pieces for brass band contests and the first such work was the tone poem "Labour & Love" written by Percy Fletcher for the Crystal Palace contest of 1913. This important piece of music was recorded by the St. Hilda Colliery Band who were the runners-up that year.

The St. Hilda Colliery Band almost completely dominated the Crystal Palace contest from 1920 to 1926, after which they turned professional and of course ceased to contest. During this period, new works such as "Coriolanus"; "Life Divine"; "Freedom"; "Oliver Cromwell"; "On the Cornish Coast"; "Joan of Arc" and "An Epic Symphony" were commissioned and used as test pieces and each was recorded by the winning band very soon after the competition. In some years it was not unusual for three or four different bands to make records of the test piece, and these bands were generally among the first few place getters. With only a couple of exceptions every Crystal Palace test piece has been recorded by the winning band from 1920 to 1936.

Naturally enough, soloists were often featured on records and names such as Arthur and Harold Laycock (St. Hilda's); Harold Moss and Elgar Clayton (Wingate's); Edwin Firth (Foden's); Owen Bottomley (Black Dyke); and many others became well known to bandsmen in this country via the gramophone record.

During the thirties Harry Mortimer was the featured cornet soloist of Foden's Band on a number of records and he also recorded under his own name as a soloist sometimes with organ or orchestral backing. Jack Mackintosh was another great cornet player who made a quite a number of discs in the same period and when these two players combined as they did to record duets such as "Jack & Jill", "Merry Mountaineers"; "The Swallows Serenade"; Mac & Mort" etc. the result was really worth hearing.

A number of Australian bands and soloists made gramophone records prior to the Second World War. The Newcastle Steelworks and The Commonwealth Band both made records during their visits to England in the mid twenties and several of their soloists, Alfred Paxton; – cornet; Charles Dean – trombone; Harold Reid – Xylophone were featured but more often Arthur Stender who was principal cornet of both bands.

The Malvern Tramways Band under Harry Shugg recorded Denis Wright's Overture "Joan of Arc" in the late twenties and the Metropolitan Fire Brigade Band conducted by "Massa" Johnstone made a few march records for a small Victorian company. In 1936 Cairns' Citizens Band of Queensland made two records and their conductor James Compton, who was stated on the records to be "Australia's Champion Cornetist", made at least three records under his own name. Harry Berry (Senr). recorded a cornet solo he wrote himself and with which he won the West Australian Centenary Contest, Perth in 1929. An interesting point concerning this record is that the well known composer (and Australia's only lady band adjudicator) Helen Johnstone plays the piano accompaniment.

John Robertson combined with Jack Mackintosh to record the cornet duet "The Merrymakers" and he also made a record of Herbert L. Clarke's solo "The Debutante." These records were produced about the time he was associated with the "St. Hilda Professional Band" in England during the early thirties. Dr. Cyril Jenkins, composer of "Coriolanus" and "Life Divine" conducted the "Regimental Band of the 55th Battalion, N.S.W. Rifles" when they made discs of these two major works around about 1930. As the years go by copies of all these old records will become more difficult to obtain as most of them will eventually find their way into the hands of collectors and cease to circulate. There are still plenty around though and provided a person is prepared to spend time checking out second hand shops and the like it is possible to begin to build up a collection almost straightaway.

The quality of reproduction from these old records varies considerably according to make, age and condition but with relatively good equipment and a record in fair condition most people are agreeably surprised with the quality of sound they hear.

In England there exists a number of Record Collectors Societies one or two of which have branches in Australia and who produce their own news sheets. Through these News Sheets it is possible to advertise for and exchange records with other collectors in Australia and overseas. For example, some years ago I was able to obtain from an American collector a batch of recordings which included a number of solos by Herbert L. Clarke; Jules Levy and Bohumir Kryl on cornet and trombonists like Arthur Pryor and Jerry Cimeria.

More and more people today seem to have a collection of modern L.P. records of their choice and for the bandsman with such a collection I recommend that he consider adding some vintage records as I feel that like myself and others I know he will find that collecting them is a fascinating and absorbing hobby.
