May your stay be enjoyable and your appreciation of our City's hospitality be lasting and pleasant.

JAMES T. FINIMORE,

Mayor.

An Appreciation

The Members of the Ipswich Band Contest Committee take this opportunity of expressing their heartfelt thanks to the host of business and public men of Ipswich and Brisbane for their ready response to the Committee's appeal for assistance. First of all, the splendid practical help from the firm of Cribb & Foote Ltd., Hancock Bros. Pty. Ltd., the Queensland Government, Ipswich City Council, who gave a lead to the various business organisations and professions to aid the fund which formed a substantial foundation for the financing of this great Contest.

The hotels have responded nobly to our appeal for accommodation, and have made adequate arrangements to provide comfortable board and accommodation for our visiting bandsmen.

We also keenly appreciate the co-operation of the various Government and Municipal departments, especially the Railway Department, for means of transport at cheap rates, and the Police Department for their readiness to place the principal streets of the City at the disposal of the Bands on Easter Saturday for the grand Street Marches.

It now only remains for the public to recognise the efforts of all concerned by patronising the sessions in order to place the seal of unqualified musical and financial success to the greatest musical carnival ever held in the history of this City.

On behalf of the Committee.

R. G. ANDREW,

President.

8. Each Band in its numerical order must be ready to march on before the preceding one has left the stand. Each Band, after leaving the stage, must play an item as next Band gets ready if required. The band drawing last place will play the First Band on to the stage, the first Band shall play on the second, and so on in their rotation.
9. The Contest Committee reserve the right to require the competing Bands to take part in any street marching or playing they may deem desirable.

17. Any courtesy items played during the contest, whether at Street Marching, playing bands on or off the platform, or at inspection, shall not include any item that has been, or will be, played in a competitive number in such contest.

MR. J. BOOTH GORE

ADJUDICATOR'S CAREER

The musical career of J. Booth Gore commenced at an early age as a boy cornetist. When 14 years of age the violin was added to his studies to obtain knowledge of orchestral performance.

Early in life he passed The London College of Music examinations in Theory and Composition.

Mr. Gore played Solo Cornet for a few years under the direction of the famous conductor, the late Mr. Ed. Code. In this further stage of musical education he gained the practical experience which is essential to become a successful conductor of music. In following years he conducted with success bands in a large number of contests, and it was during this period he directed his attention seriously to vocal music and eventually was appointed conductor of two 60-voice choirs at Melbourne.

As a Cornet Soloist Mr. Gore made only a few appearances in competition, but on one occasion obtained the possible points at Ballarat, and at Melbourne won the Australian Championship.

Mr. Gore's arrangements for Brass Band, Orchestra, and Choir are many, and his arrangements for Brass and Pipe Bands combined are unique. His compositions embrace full Band Scores, Solos for band instruments, also vocal songs.

Over a long period Mr. Gore has adjudicated at Contests for Brass Bands, Solo Competitions for Brass and String Instruments, and, in addition to the foregoing, he has adjudicated at competitions for Vocal Solos and Choirs on several occasions.

MR. W. J. PHILPOTT

Eldest son of the late W. G. Philpott, well-known Bandmaster and Musician of New Zealand and New South Wales, is a well-known Band trainer and conductor, and has been highly successful in all grades. Was conductor and trainer of Wonthaggi Union Band for 10 years, and South Melbourne City for 13 years, and led both Bands to victory in "A" and "B" Grades. Is now Conductor of Malvern Municipal Band, Wesley College, and Northcote High School Bands. He has won fame as a Cornet Soloist in New Zealand and Australia. Has adjudicated at many contests during the past years.

City of Ipswich and its Surroundings

Ipswich, an industrial city of some twenty-six thousand or more people, is happily placed in a beautiful rural setting of fertile hillsides and valleys stretching out towards the mountain ranges which practically surround the Ipswich District, comprising the municipality of Ipswich and the Shires of Moreton, Rosewood, Esk, Normanby, and Boonah.

On the westerly side of Ipswich District, and more or less separated therefrom by the Little Liverpool Range, are the Shires of Laidley and Gatton, which, together with Ipswich District, constitute West Moreton.

A very broad classification of the whole district according to soil, contour and vegetation is undulating to hilly forest country with frequent belts of black soil plains and open grassy downs.

Besides enhancing the scenic grandeur, these mountain boundaries form the main catchment area which supplies with fresh water the various streams traversing the district, and replenishes the subterranean supply by which many thousands of irrigation plants are kept in operation.

Amongst these hills and dales are many beauty spots, and, along the creeks and larger streams can be found shady picnic spots with deep, cool swimming pools and shallows of crystal clear water running over shale and pebble beds, and level banks of stone and sand with a fringe of green sward to complete a camper's paradise.

The approach to the city proper is by a beautiful highway, the footpaths studded with rockeries of well-trimmed Bougainvillea, bearing in many hues tributes of our floral emblem, with a background of lovely shade trees.

On either side are park lands with terraced hillsides teeming with all manner of decorative plants and crowned with nature-planted giant figs, which stand sentinel over the city.

The lovely hills, profusely lined with many trees, which form the natural rampart of the city; the River Bremer meandering through the valley of Ipswich; all go to show how richly the city has been endowed with natural beauty, and whilst successive City Engineers have added many "perms," her main charm remains in nature's gifts.

Ipswich is the centre of commercial and industrial activities of West Moreton and all east-bound rail and road transport from outlying areas converge at this point.

This district comprises one of the most important agricultural sections of Queensland, and produces a much greater variety of crops on a commercial scale than any other division of the State.

Allied with these rich agricultural potentialities are a thriving dairying and pig-raising industry, and cattle raising in a lesser degree.

The Division normally enjoys a reasonably satisfactory rainfall, and has a very definite asset in the large population within its boundaries, to which portion of the products, both in raw and processed state, can be sold. In addition there is the metropolitan population located within 25 miles of Ipswich readily accessible by rail and road.

Ipswich offers splendid facilities for manufacturing undertakings in the form of suitable factory sites with adequate supply of water and coal on the spot, and under normal conditions a reliable supply of labour and raw materials.

Somewhat removed from the coastline, yet enjoying the advantage of being only 25 miles distant from the Capital City and shipping port, Ipswich presents excellent opportunities for decentralisation of industry by providing desirable factory sites inland and in close proximity to raw materials and coal. Many of the heavy industries, including the State Government Railway Workshops, are located in Ipswich, and female labour from families so employed find work in the textile mills located in Ipswich and Moreton Shire.

Greater Ipswich

The boundaries of the City of Ipswich were extended on May 29th, 1949, thereby increasing the administrative area of 12½ square miles to 30 square miles.

This provided for the inclusion of the townships of Bundamba, Ebbw Vale, Dinmore, Riverview, Redbank and Goodna, and some other adjoining areas more or less rural.

All of these, to a large extent, have been associated with the growth, prosperity, and culture of this City, and now gradually will participate in its amenities and responsibilities.

The latest estimated population of the greater Ipswich area is 35,000.

The Corporation Seal

There is an item in the 1861 statement of £36/10/- for a "corporation seal." That seal is still the seal of the corporation. It was designed by the Rev. L. H. Rumsey, who in those days was Rector of St. Paul's Church, Ipswich. Here is a description of it as given by the present Town Clerk in the "Municipal Review" for 1909:—

Lower Left-Hand Panel: Plough, two Sheaves of Wheat, one standing and one lying on ground. Rising ground in the background with three factories, one at each end with one chimney, and centre one with two chimneys and smoke issuing from them. Church spire and building a-top of rising ground on right.

Upper Right-Hand Panel: Shovel and Pickaxe with Coal Basket suspended by loop handle and rake.

Rayed Crown over top of Shield, with Rose, Shamrock, and Thistle underneath.

Emblem of Wheat in Ear on left-hand side of shield.

Emblem of Cotton in Pod on right-hand side of shield.

Motto: "Confide recte agens" (Be confident when doing right), in ribbon with grapevine, tendrils, and fruit underneath the motto.

Synopsis of “Jupiter” Symphony

This Symphony, Mozart's 49th and last, was not given the title of “Jupiter” by him, but by some unknown admirer, and it is now always given that title in concert programmes. It is not known whether Mozart had any particular programme or descriptive ideas in his mind when composing the symphony and it seems reasonable to assume that it was simply the spontaneous outpourings of a musical soul which had been inspiring him to a most prolific output of works of all kinds during almost the whole of his short life of 35 years. He was born on 27th June, 1756, and died on 5th December, 1791, and had been composing since the age of four. An example of his speed in composition is shown by the fact that his last three symphonies—in E Flat, G Major, and C Major (“Jupiter”)—were all composed within the short space of time of six weeks, from 26th June to 10th August, 1787, a most remarkable achievement when one considers the length of the three works, the mere writing of which would be an enormous task even though the orchestra of his day was small, consisting of the string family with flute, oboes, bassoons, horns, trumpets, and tympani. In spite, however, of the developments of the orchestra, and the immense amount of music that has been written since Mozart's death, these three symphonies still retain their popularity and are frequently included in orchestral concert programmes, coming as a refreshing relief after the harshness and bizarre effects of many modern compositions of a similar nature; they are universally admired for their sheet beauty of melody, and their clarity and grace of construction.

It would be difficult to find a more tragic example of genius unrecognised than the life of Mozart, who was always in dire financial straits, and died in extreme poverty, being buried in a pauper's grave; but his work lives on, and will continue long after many modern works, which are more the striving after effects of immature minds than the inspiration of genius, will have died and been forgotten.

This abridged version of the “Jupiter” Symphony, arranged by Mr. J. A. Greenwood, makes an outstanding addition to our list of brass band classics. The first movement of the main themes from becoming monotonous by playing with breadth, smoothness, and correct phrasing, not merely a succession of notes filling in the harmony and having no melodic connection with each other. It is symphonic music of the best type, and all parts are of equal importance. The second movement

Allegro vivace is a fiery vigorous movement, full of contrasts of tone colour and dynamic force, which prevent the many repetitions

Andante cantabile is a complete contrast to the first, being slower. The melody is, in the main, given to the first cornets, and it should not be overlooked that there is no solo work for cornet throughout the movement; there should always be at least two, preferably three or four, first cornets playing, in order to produce the full rich beauty of tone so necessary in a movement of this kind. Although the movement is slow, it need not be deadly and uninteresting; there is plenty of variety in all parts, and if the music is kept moving at a steady pace, no slower than the tempo indicated, there should be no difficulty in making it sound interesting to listeners. The third movement

Allegretti (Minuetto) is a happy lively $\frac{3}{4}$ movement in the style of a Minuet. None of the great composers disliked the popular dance measures of their day, and this Minuet is an essential part of the symphony, as similar movements are in many other symphonies written during the same period in musical history. Music and the other arts provide a true reflex of the state of life of the period in which they were created, and life in general in the days when this symphony was written was less exciting and more leisurely than it is at the present time. The Minuet was a very pretty and stately dance, and steady rhythmic playing is needed to give a true picture of a Minuet as danced in olden times. The last movement

Allegro molto is a fine brilliant section in Alla breve time in which all players have plenty of work to do, and need also plenty of sustaining power. Basses have a grand opportunity to shine in this music, both in their ability to play melodies, and in their executive capacities. Active tongues are needed here, also close observance of the marks of expression. This movement makes a grand finale to the work, and is one in which all good bands will revel.

This is a magnificent testpiece for first-class bands, and others will derive benefit from rehearsing it. The symphony is a great favourite with audiences at classical concerts, and this abbreviated version of it will be a fine programme number for brass bands.

SYNOPSIS OF "CARMEN"

Bizet (Bez-a), the composer of Carmen, was a native of Paris, and a distinguished musician of that city about the middle of last century. He wrote several operas, but it was Carmen that brought him lasting fame. The story of the opera is as follows:—

A Spanish girl of the name of Carmen was arrested for fighting in the cigarette factory where she worked. But the sergeant who took her in charge (Jose) was soon overcome by her great beauty. He allowed her to escape, and for this was himself sent to prison. Meanwhile, Carmen joins a gang of smugglers, and when Jose gets out of custody, he seeks her out. She, however, refuses his overtures, as she has now given her affections to the bullfighter Escamillo. Jose pleads with her to return to him, but without success, and, made with love and jealousy, stabs her to death. The selection is noted for the world famed Toreador's Song.

Carmen was produced at the Opera Comique in Paris on March 3rd, 1875, with great success, and brought the composer lasting fame, which, however, he didn't live to enjoy. Three months later he succumbed to heart disease.
